1 Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), Defendant King County hereby 2 moves to dismiss with prejudice Plaintiff Northwestern University’s (“NU”) Action for False 3 Designation of Origin, Unfair Competition, and Common Law Trademark Infringement on the 4 ground that King County’s alleged misconduct as a matter of law does not occur in trade or 5 commerce—a requisite element for each of the claims NU brings. Additionally, dismissal of 6 all claims with prejudice is warranted because King County is not subject to suit under the 7 Washington Consumer Protection Act and NU’s remaining claims are time-barred.

8 I. INTRODUCTION

9 The issues raised by this motion are not complicated. NU has brought this Action 10 against King County in an effort to “force King County” to change the name of its so-called 11 “youth detention facility” from the “Children and Family Justice Center” (or “CFJC” for short, 12 collectively, “the Marks”) to “something else.” (Dkt. No. 1, at 1.) As the vehicle to achieve 13 that end, NU alleges that King County’s use of the Marks in the manner described violates the 14 Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. § 1125(a), Count I), the Washington State’s Consumer Protection Act
 15 (“CPA”) (RCW 19.86.010 et seq., Count II), and the common law pertaining to trademark 16 infringement and unfair competition (Count III). NU is wrong. King County does not use the 17 Marks “in commerce,” a requisite element for each Count. Rather, it uses the Marks only in 18 connection with the provision of uniquely municipal and non-commercial services, which as a 19 matter of law cannot constitute commercial activity. As such, the entirety of this Action 20 warrants dismissal with prejudice.

21 Additionally, even if King County’s use of the Marks could somehow be deemed 22 “commercial” in nature, NU’s Action still warrants dismissal with prejudice. King County as 23 a municipal corporation is not subject to suit under Washington’s CPA, and NU’s remaining 24 claims are time-barred. The former has been established unequivocally by the Washington 25 State Supreme Court. The latter is an unavoidable consequence of assuming the truth of all of 26 NU’s factual allegations.

1 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

2 In April 2012, the King County Council passed Ordinance No. 17304, which sent to the 3 voters of King County on August 7, 2012, King County Proposition No. 1. (King County Youth 4 Center Levy Increase (August 2012) – Ballotpedia, <https://bit.ly/2Fqo9yl> (hereinafter “Prop.
 5 No. 1 Background”).) The proposition recognized the need to update the County’s aging Youth 6 Services Center (“YSC”), and it proposed a specific manner in which a new facility would be 7 funded and built to replace the YSC. (See id. (citing The Seattle Medium, “County Council 8 Sends Proposed Levy Increase For Construction Of Children And Family Justice Center To 9 August Ballot,” April 18, 2012 (emphasis added)).) King County Proposition No. 1 read in full 10 as follows:

11 The King County council passed Ordinance No. 17304 concerning 12 a replacement facility for juvenile justice and family law services.
 13 This proposition would authorize King County to levy an additional 14 property tax for nine years to fund capital costs to replace the 15 Children and Family Justice Center, which serves the justice needs 16 of children and families. It would authorize King County to levy an 17 additional regular property tax of $0.07 per $1,000 of assessed 18 valuation for collection in 2013. Increases in the following eight 19 years would be subject to the limitations in chapter 84.55 RCW, all 20 as provided in Ordinance No. 17304.

21 (Prop. No. 1 Background (citing King County Elections, King County Measure Information).)

22 Proposition No. 1 passed with over 55% of the vote. (Id.) Beginning in 2013, then, 23 King County began collecting taxes to fund construction of its publicly announced “Children 24 and Family Justice Center.” (Id.) And by at least December 21, 2016, King County dedicated 25 a webpage for updates and information pertaining to the facility and its construction, therein 26 expressly referring to the facility by name as the Children and Family Justice Center. (Children 27 and Family Justice Center – King County, <https://bit.ly/3iDvVm> (archived website last updated December 21, 2016).)

28 On December 22, 2016, the day following King County’s webpage update regarding 29 construction of the new CFJC facility, NU contacted King County to express its objection to 30 the County’s use of the Children and Family Justice Center name. (Complaint, Dkt. No. 1

1 (“Complaint”) ¶ 29 and accompanying Exhibit 4.) According to NU’s own Complaint, NU’s 2 “second letter again asking that [King County] reconsider” its use of the Marks for “the new 3 facility” did not occur until February 14, 2020. (Complaint ¶ 34 and accompanying Exhibit 6.) 4 By then, however, the King County Council had introduced and passed Ordinance No. 18961, 5 which amended the name of the Children and Family Justice Center to officially become the 6 Judge Patricia H. Clark Children and Family Justice Center. (Complaint ¶ 30.; see also 7 Ordinance No. 18961, Section 2 (“We do hereby honor King County Superior Court Judge
 8 Patricia H. Clark by naming the Children and Family Justice Center as the Judge Patricia H.
 9 Clark Children and Family Justice Center”) enacted July 31, 2019, available at King 10 County – File #: 2019-0210, <https://bit.ly/2DTrHbR>.)

11 On July 3, 2020, NU commenced this Action with the filing of its Complaint. Therein, 12 NU describes “Defendant’s Infringing Activities” as comprising use of the “Children and 13 Family Justice Center” and “CFJC” Marks in connection with “juvenile detention services, . . .
 14 detention alternatives, family services, and other social services for youth and their families.”
 15 (Complaint ¶ 31.) NU does not identify which of these services, if any, it believes constitute 16 commercial services as opposed to municipal services funded entirely through tax revenue.
 17 (See generally id. See also id., Exhibit 7 (letter to NU’s counsel explaining in part that King 18 County’s activities as alleged cannot constitute “use of any mark in commerce at all”). Accord 19 id. Exhibit 5 (“The new facility will provide a respectful and supportive environment to link 20 even more youth and families – court-involved or not – with services and non-profit 21 organizations in their own communities.”).) It also does not explain or address why NU waited 22 over three years to file suit against King County despite the known, open, and notorious use of 23 the Marks on King County websites for years. (See generally id. See also id., Exhibit 7 (letter 24 to NU’s counsel stating in relevant part, “Indeed, taking the allegations of [NU’s] draft 25 complaint as true, [NU] has been aware of King County’s use of the terms ‘Children and Family 26 Justice Center’ and ‘CFJC’ since at least December 2016.”))

27

1 III. ARGUMENT

2 A. Legal Standards

3 1. Rule 12(b)(6) Standard

4 “A defendant may move for dismissal when a plaintiff ‘fails to state a claim upon which 5 relief can be granted.’” McClellon v. Citigroup Glob. Mkts., Inc., No. C18-0978-JCC, 2018
 6 WL 5808440, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 6, 2018) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6)). “To survive 7 a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to state
 8 a claim for relief that is plausible on its face.” Id. (citing Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 677-9 78 (2009)). “[T]he pleading standard Rule 8 announces does not require ‘detailed factual 10 allegations,’ but it demands more than unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed me 11 accusation.” Id. (citations omitted) (alteration in original). A plaintiff must therefore provide 12 “more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of 13 action,” and the factual allegations “must be enough to raise a right to relief above the 14 speculative level.” Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). The question 15 for the Court is whether the facts in the complaint sufficiently state a “plausible” ground for 16 relief. Id. at 570. The plausibility standard “does not impose a probability requirement at the 17 pleading stage; it simply calls for enough fact to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery 18 will reveal evidence” of culpable conduct. Id. at 556.

19 A “Court may dismiss a claim under Rule 12(b)(6) on the basis that it is barred by a 20 statute of limitations, but only when ‘the running of the statute is apparent on the face of the 21 complaint.’” Young v. Spokane County, No. 14-CV-98-RMP, 2014 WL 2893260, at *2 (E.D.
 22 Wash. Jun. 25, 2014) (quoting Von Saher v. Norton Simon Museum of Art at Pasadena, 592
 23 F.3d 954, 969 (9th Cir. 2010)). “A federal claim accrues when the plaintiff knows or has reason 24 to know of the injury which is the basis of the action.” Id. (quoting Bagley v. CMC Real Estate 25 Corp., 923 F.2d 758, 760 (9th Cir. 1991).) In Washington, courts apply the 3-year statute of 26 limitations applicable to the common law tort of trade name infringement to false designation 27

1 of origin claims under the Lanham Act. Eat Right Foods, Ltd. v. Whole Foods Mkt., Inc., No.
 2 C13-2174 RSM, 2018 WL 2387638, at *3 (W.D. Wash. May 25, 2018).

3 2. Standards Governing Claims for False Designation of Origin Under 4 the Lanham Act and Common Law Trademark 5 Infringement/Unfair Competition

6 a. Requisite Elements and “Use in Commerce”

7 To adequately plead a claim for False Designation of Origin under the Lanham Act, a 8 plaintiff must plead that a defendant “(1) used in commerce (2) a false designation of origin (3) 9 which is likely to cause confusion as to the origin of the [product that the defendant] sell[s] and 10 (4) that such use has or is likely to damage plaintiffs.” Corker v. Costco Wholesale Corp., No.
 11 C19-0290RSL, 2019 WL 5895430, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 12, 2019) (citing 15 U.S.C. § 12 1125(a)(1)(A)). The term “commerce” is expressly and broadly defined in the Lanham Act as 13 “all commerce which may lawfully be regulated by Congress.” 15 U.S.C. § 1127. In turn, 14 Courts have construed the reach of the Lanham Act to extend to the full scope of the Commerce
 15 Clause of the United States Constitution. See Trader Joe’s Co. v. Hallatt, 835 F. 3d 960, 967
 16 (9th Cir. 2016) (citing U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 3). “Consistent with this structure,” courts 17 have identified several “broad categories of activity that Congress may regulate under its 18 commerce power,” but the scope is not without limits. U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549, 558 (1995).
 19 “[T]he question of congressional power under the Commerce Clause ‘is necessarily one of 20 degree.’” Id. at 566 (quoting N.L.R.B. v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., 301 U.S. 1, 37 (1937)); 21 see also id. at 567-68 (cautioning against the use of “inference upon inference in a manner that 22 would bid fair to convert congressional authority under the Commerce Clause to a general police power of the sort retained by the States”).

23 In the context of Federal Lanham Act jurisprudence, the Ninth Circuit has taken the 24 approach that “use in commerce” generally relates to acts “made to promote any competing 25 service or reap any commercial benefit whatsoever.” Freecycle Network, Inc. v. Oey, 505 F.3d 26 898, 903 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing 15 U.S.C. § 1127 and Mattel, Inc. v. MCA Records, Inc., 296 27

1 F.3d 894, 903 (9th Cir. 2002) (“[Trademark law’s ‘use in commerce’] refers to a use of a famous 2 and distinctive mark to sell goods [or services] other than those produced or authorized by the 3 mark’s owner.”) (alterations in original)). Relatedly, applicable state and common law 4 trademark infringement/unfair competition law likewise requires a similar showing of use in 5 commerce. Philips Oral Healthcare, LLC v. Shenzhen Sincere Mold Tech. Co., No. 2:18-CV-6 01032-TSZ, 2019 WL 1572675, at *7 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 11, 2019) (quoting Safeworks, LLC v.
 7 Teupen Am., LLC, 717 F. Supp. 2d 1181, 1192 (W.D. Wash. 2010) (“The elements necessary 8 to establish a likelihood of confusion for common law and statutory unfair competition claims 9 in Washington are the same as for federal trademark infringement and unfair competition.”).)
 10 See also Headspace Int’l LLC v. Podworks Corp., 428 P.3d 1260, 1263-64 (Wash. Ct. App.
 11 2018) (explaining that Washington, in adopting the Model State Trademark Bill, relies “on 12 federal court decisions interpreting federal trademark law” to inform interpretation of state law); 13 eAcceleration Corp. v. Trend Micro., Inc., 408 F.Supp.2d 1110, 1114 (W.D. Wash. 2006) 14 (identifying Washington’s reliance on trademark jurisprudence to evaluate “common law and 15 statutory unfair competition claims” predicated on likelihood of confusion).

16 In contrast, the Washington Supreme Court has recognized that the operation and 17 administration of a “‘community-based correctional facility and program’ [is] a ‘uniquely 18 government function,’” associated with “the administration of jails and prisons, which 19 ‘historically has been an exclusive state function.’” Fortgang v. Woodland Park Zoo, 387 P.3d 20 690, 699 n.8 (Wash. 2017) (emphasis added) (citing cases); see also City of Seattle v. Monsanto
 21 Co., 237 F.Supp.3d 1096, 1104-1105 (W.D. Wash. 2017) (quoting Russell v. City of Tacoma, 22 35 P. 605 (1894) to distinguish between municipal actions done “for the public good, and not 23 for private corporate advantage”).

24 b. Applicable Time Limitations to File Suit

25 In addition to adequately pleading the requisite elements, a plaintiff bringing a claim in 26 Washington for False Designation of Origin under the Lanham Act and a claim predicated on 27

1 common law trademark infringement must timely file its claim within the same time limitation 2 period:

3 The Lanham Act has no express statute of limitations. The Court 4 therefore looks to the limitations of the closest analogous limitation 5 from statue [sic] law. The closest analogous cause of action in state 6 law is Washington's common law tort of trade name infringement.
See Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. JNA Seattle, Inc., No. C06– 7 1455JLR, 2007 WL 788354, at *6 (W.D. Wash. Mar.14, 2007).
 Such claims have a three year statute of limitations. RCW 4.16.080(2).

8 Oldcaste Precast, Inc. v. Granite Precasting & Concrete, Inc., No. CIV. C10-322 MJP, 2011
 9 WL 813759, at *4 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 2, 2011).

10 As such, Lanham Act claims and claims grounded in common law trademark 11 infringement both must be filed within three years from the date the plaintiff knew or should 12 have known about the existence of a potential cause of action. Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v.
 13 Nutrition Now, Inc., 304 F.3d 829, 838 (9th Cir. 2002).

14 3. Standards Governing Claims Under Washington's CPA

15 To adequately plead a claim under Washington's CPA, a plaintiff must adequately 16 allege "that the defendant engaged in '(1) [an] unfair or deceptive act or practice; (2) occurring 17 in trade or commerce; (3) public interest impact; (4) injury to plaintiff in his or her business or 18 property; [and] (5) causation.'" Univ. of Washington v. Gov't Employees Ins. Co., 404 P.3d 19 559, 567 (2017) (quoting Hangman Ridge Training Stables, Inc. v. Safeco Title Ins. Co., 719 20 P.2d 531, 532-33 (1986)). However, such a claim may not be brought against a municipal 21 corporation or political subdivision of the state. Washington Nat. Gas Co. v. Pub. Util. Dist.
 22 No. 1 of Snohomish Cty., 459 P.2d 633, 635-36 (Wash. 1969) (en banc) ("RCW 19.86[] includes 23 only 'natural persons, corporations, trusts, unincorporated associations and partnerships.' 24 Nowhere does its language imply that municipal corporations or political subdivisions of the 25 state are within the definition of persons and entities made subject to it.') Indeed, this Court 26 has noted explicitly that "the Washington Supreme Court has clearly ruled that municipal 27 corporations . . . are exempt from the WCPA." Witham v. Clallam Cty. Pub. Hosp. Dist. 2, No.

1 C09-5410RJB, 2009 WL 3346041, at *7 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 15, 2009) (dismissing CPA claim 2 against defendant and refusing to certify question for appeal because “[t]he Washington 3 Supreme Court has ruled on the exemption of municipal corporations from the WCPA in clear 4 and unambiguous terms”).

5 B. NU’s Claims for False Designation of Origin Under the Lanham Act, 6 for Unfair and Deceptive Practices under the Washington CPA, and 7 for Common Law Trademark Infringement and Unfair Competition Warrant Dismissal with Prejudice

8 Each of the three counts set forth in NU’s Complaint, all arising from King County’s 9 alleged use of the Marks “Children and Family Justice Center” and “CFJC” to reference the 10 facility through which it will offer and provide uniquely municipal services, warrant dismissal 11 with prejudice. But perhaps not for the most obvious reason. The most obvious reason might 12 be NU’s contravention of Iqbal/Twombly pleading standards, relying on a mere formulaic 13 recitation of the elements for each claim, and failing to identify any specific fact that would 14 tend to satisfy any element of its claims. (Complaint ¶¶ 39-55 (referring generically to King 15 County’s “conduct,” “actions,” and “acts” to plead elements of each claim).) Because that 16 pleading deficiency is potentially cured by amendment, however, the Complaint’s other 17 shortcomings are more pertinent here. See Lambert v. Huertas, No. 319CV05980RJB-JRC, 18 2020 WL 3618973, at *4 (W.D. Wash. May 28, 2020) (“Where a motion to dismiss is granted, 19 a district court should provide leave to amend unless it is clear that the complaint could not be 20 saved by any amendment.”) (citations omitted), report and recommendation adopted sub nom.
 21 Lambert v. Heurtas, No. 19-5980 RJB-JRC, 2020 WL 3618980 (W.D. Wash. July 2, 2020).

22 Specifically, NU’s Complaint sets forth at least three incurable deficiencies requiring 23 dismissal of this Action with prejudice: (1) the Acts complained of do not occur in commerce
 24 as a matter of law, and such use is an essential element of each of NU’s claims; (2) King County
 25 as a municipal corporation and political subdivision of the State of Washington is not subject 26 to suit under the Washington CPA; and (3) NU’s remaining claims are time-barred.

1 1. King County's Alleged Use of the Marks Is Not "in Commerce"

2 Notwithstanding NU's conclusory allegations to the contrary, NU does not and cannot 3 plead sufficient facts to establish that King County uses the Marks, or even otherwise engages, 4 in commerce. See Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556 (plaintiff must plead "enough fact to raise a 5 reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence" of the allegation). Each of NU's 6 claims is predicated on the allegation that King County is using the Marks in connection with 7 "juvenile detention services" and its offers, intentions to offer, and/or intention "to house other 8 organizations that offer various juvenile and juvenile-justice-related services, including 9 detention alternatives, family services, and other social services for youth and their families."
 10 (Complaint ¶ 31.) These services are not commercial in nature, and NU cannot point to any 11 facts to suggest otherwise.

12 For example, NU alleges no facts to suggest that King County is offering these services 13 to "reap any commercial benefit," or that it is using the Marks "to sell goods [or services]." FreeCycle Network, Inc., 505 F.3d at 903 (alteration in original). That is because it cannot: the 14 Complaint makes clear that these services are offered as part of a "community-based 15 correctional facility and program," which the Washington Supreme Court has recognized to be 16 a "uniquely government" and "exclusive state function." Fortgang, 387 P.3d at 699 n.8; see also Complaint, Exhibit 5 thereto ("The Children and Family Justice Center will replace the 17 outdated Youth Services Center with a flexible and therapeutic facility that provides modern 18 youth and family court services as well as a trauma-informed juvenile detention center."). As 19 such, they are services not subject to federal regulation by way of the Commerce Clause. See 20 Lopez, 514 U.S. at 577 ("Were the Federal Government to take over the regulation of entire 21 areas of traditional state concern, areas having nothing to do with the regulation of commercial 22 activities, the boundaries between the spheres of federal and state authority would blur and 23 political responsibility would become illusory."). King County's use of the Marks to promote 24 these services therefore cannot constitute "use in commerce" as a matter of law. See Trader
 25 Joe's Co., 835 F.3d at 967.

1 As noted above, each of NU’s claims for relief require that the alleged illicit conduct 2 occur “in commerce.” NU’s Complaint provides no facts to support this requisite element, and 3 it cannot: evidence cited in NU’s own Complaint makes clear that King County is using the 4 Marks for purely municipal, non-commercial purposes. Because NU’s pleading defect cannot 5 be cured by way of amendment, and because it extends to all Counts pleaded, this Action is 6 properly dismissed in its entirety with prejudice.

7 2. King County Is Not Subject to Suit Under the Washington CPA

8 The second incurable defect of NU’s Complaint applies only to Count II, “Unfair and 9 Deceptive Practices Act – RCW 19.86.020.” (Complaint at 8) “The Washington Supreme 10 Court has ruled on the exemption of municipal corporations from the WCPA in clear and 11 unambiguous terms.” Witham, 2009 WL 3346041, at *7. King County is a municipal 12 corporation. King Cty. v. Tax Comm’n, 387 P. 2d 756, 759 (Wash. 1963) (en banc) (citing State
 13 ex rel. Summerfield v. Tyler, 45 P. 31, 33 (Wash. 1896), Lincoln Cty. v. Brock, 79 P. 477, 478 14 (Wash. 1905), and State ex rel. Eastvold v. Yelle, 279 P.2d 645, 649 (Wash. 1955) (en banc) to 15 note, “We have held in at least two cases that a county is a municipal corporation, or at least a 16 quasimunicipal corporation.”) NU’s claim against King County under the Washington CPA is 17 therefore properly dismissed with prejudice.

18 C. NU’s Lanham Act and Common Law Trademark Infringement 19 Claims Are Untimely

20 The third incurable defect of NU’s Complaint applies only to Counts I and III, False 21 Designation of Origin under the Lanham Act and Common Law Trademark and Unfair 22 Competition. (Complaint at 7-9.) According to NU’s own factual allegations, those Counts are 23 time-barred.

24 As noted above, King County in 2012 adopted and began using the name “Children and 25 Family Justice Center” for the facility that would replace the deteriorating Youth Service
 26 Center. At that time, it was explicitly referenced as part of King County Ordinance No. 17304
 27 in April, and thereafter it was presented to King County voters as part King County Proposition

1 No. 1 of the August 2012 ballot. (Prop. No. 1 Background.) According to the Complaint, 2 however, NU would not learn of King County’s adoption and use of the Mark until nearly four 3 years later, in “late 2016” (although NU is careful to plead that it learned only of King County’s 4 contemplated use of the Mark at that time). (Complaint ¶ 29 (stating that NU “learned that 5 King County was contemplating naming the New Facility ‘the Children and Family Justice 6 Center’” in “late 2016” but failing to specify how NU acquired that knowledge). But see id.
 7 Exhibit 4 (letter from NU to King County dated December 22, 2016 (stating NU’s objection 8 “to the use” of the “Children and Family Justice Center” name)); accord Children and Family 9 Justice Center – King County, <https://bit.ly/3iDvVmV> (archived website last updated December 10 21, 2016) (providing online information regarding King County’s explicitly named Children 11 and Family Justice Center)). Regardless of whether NU knew of King County’s actual use of 12 the Mark by “late 2016,” the Complaint makes clear that NU at least should have known as 13 much by then.

14 For instance, NU may not admit to knowledge of King County’s actual adoption and 15 use of the name “Children and Family Justice Center” by “late 2016,” but it does admit to 16 learning that King County “was contemplating” such use at that time. (Complaint ¶ 29.) A 17 simple online search of King County’s website at that same time would have readily revealed 18 that King County was not contemplating use of the Mark by December 2016, but instead was 19 in fact already using the Mark by then. (Children and Family Justice Center – King County, 20 <https://bit.ly/3iDvVmV> (archived website last updated December 21, 2016.)) Additional online 21 searching at that time would have also revealed that King County, by late 2016, had been using 22 the Mark for years. Further, assuming the veracity of the extensive community involvement 23 NU alleges to maintain in King County and in Washington State through its “CFJC Services”
 24 (Complaint ¶¶ 14-20), NU certainly should have learned at some point in the five-year period 25 between April 2012 (the date of King County Ordinance No. 17304) and July 3, 2017 (three 26 years before the date NU commenced this Action) that King County had already begun use—27

1 and was not merely contemplating use—of the Mark “Children and Family Justice Center” for 2 its new youth and family facilities.

3 Given the foregoing, NU knew or at least should have known of King County’s use of 4 the “Children and Family Justice Center” Mark by December 2016. Likewise, NU should have 5 known of King County’s use of the “CFJC” Mark at that same time. Indeed, NU’s own 6 Complaint treats the Marks interchangeably. (Id., at 1 (referencing the name of King County’s 7 facility as “‘Children and Family Justice Center’ or the ‘CFJC’”).) As such, it stands to reason
 8 that King County’s use of the full “Children and Family Justice Center” Mark would lend itself
 9 to the concomitant use of the shorthand of that same Mark, “CFJC.”

10 Governing law is clear that NU had the obligation to bring Counts I and III of this Action 11 within three years of the date it first knew or should have known of the existence of those 12 claims. See Oldcaste Precast, Inc., 2011 WL 813759, at *4 (identifying applicable statute of 13 limitations provision); see also Jarrow Formulas, Inc., 304 F.3d at 838 (holding that the time 14 to bring a Lanham Act action begins from the date plaintiff knew or should have known about 15 the existence of the action). According to NU’s own Complaint, it should have known (if it did 16 not already know) of the existence of those claims by no later than December 2016. Because 17 NU waited well over three years to bring those claims now, they are properly dismissed from 18 this Action with prejudice.

19 IV. CONCLUSION

20 For the foregoing reasons, King County respectfully requests that the Court dismiss with 21 prejudice NU’s claims for False Designation of Origin, Unfair Competition, and Common Law 22 Trademark Infringement.
